Foreword

The growing importance of the Asia-Pacific region as an engine of economic growth is attested to in recent decades by the sustained and impressive economic performance of Japan, the four Little Dragons and, increasingly, the ASEAN countries. By any account, the prospect of the western Pacific Rim's ability to sustain itself as a major economic growth centre in the years ahead is likely to persist. There is therefore a need for more and up-to-date information about the economic, social and political developments of the region and the countries that lie within it.

The Chinese University of Hong Kong is one of the major repositories of publications and documents of various types on the Asia-Pacific region in Hong Kong. It is in our interest to have these materials and resources systematically reviewed and assessed, so that the collection at the University can be used to its maximum potential by its staff and students, the public at large in Hong Kong, and beyond them other scholars and institutions outside Hong Kong interested in the collection. In this respect, I am extremely pleased that, during her period of association with the University, Diana Lai-Ha Chan saw fit to set herself the task of assembling and collating the information that is presented in these volumes. In this project she had the full support of the University Librarian, Dr. Painan Wu.

These three volumes of bibliography mark the first joint effort between the Institute and the University Library to embark on a task that is envisaged to lead to an improved understanding of the growth, dynamics and development of the Asia-Pacific region, with particular reference to the last decade. The project complements exceptionally well the research programs that are in progress at the Institute. If the publication of these bibliographies results in the enhanced use of the Asia-Pacific collection at the Library or if individuals and institutions derive direct or indirect benefit from the information they reveal, our goal in making this resource public will have been realized. In the long run, it will contribute to our better understanding of the issues, problems and opportunities in this dynamic and fascinating region that await all of us.

Introduction

About the Subject Content

The Asian Pacific countries have been drawing world attention, especially since the last decade. The so-called "five Asian Dragons" including Hong Kong, Japan, Taiwan, Singapore and South Korea are accumulating tremendous wealth because of sharp growth in their annual gross domestic product (GDP) and export volume. Typical forecasts predict that these economies will be ahead of average growth and that their total GDP may rival Western Europe's in 1992. According to the Economist (October 25, 1986) the average income of the Japanese in 1986 was higher than the Americans'. It also speculated that, by the year 2023, the average income of the Taiwanese would be greater than that of the North Americans'. And by 2032, the South Koreans' will exceed the Americans'. There is also the possibility of economic integration in this region. This integration, (Hong Kong, Shenzhen and the South China area forming one such "triangle" and Singapore, Johore (Malaysia) and Batam Island (Indonesia) forming another), could produce formidable regional economic forces. Consequently, politicians keep their eyes on their ever changing political development. Economists study the rapid development in their economic systems. Businessmen are trying hard to take on this lucrative market. Information on these political, social, economic and business environments are crucial for cross-cultural research, business decision making and foreign economic policy.

A comprehensive listing of core reference sources and publications on the political, social, economic and business environments of these Asian countries will be a valuable research tool. This research project was undertaken with this objective in mind.

As a result, the rich collections of the libraries of The Chinese University of Hong Kong (CUHK) was selected for this purpose. CUHK is a depository library of all publications printed or published in Hong Kong under the British Registration Ordinance. It has also collected extensively on China, Japan and other Asian countries. Its rich resources represent its dedication and commitment to Asian Studies.

Because most of the vital changes in these countries happened in the eighties, this project emphasizes the contemporary issues of the last decade. Publications available in CUHK including monographs, periodicals, serials, government publications, statistics, conference proceedings, working papers, theses, dissertations, microform and audio-visual materials published between 1980 to 1990 in English language are covered in this work as follows:

- Vol. I: Asia, East Asia, Japan, South Korea and Taiwan
- Vol. II: China and Hong Kong
- Vol. III: Southeast Asia, Indonesia, Malaysia, Philippines, Singapore and Thailand

About the Technical Aspect

Every library record was retrieved from the University Library's automated system - DOBIS/E - and was transferred into this bibliography through the Bibliolink and Procite software. While at every step care was taken to provide an accurate coverage, there are still some records not being retrieved for this work. They included records not yet entered into DOBIS/E at the cutoff date in April 1991. All serials were included but the holdings of these serials were not available in DOBIS/E at that stage; users of this work are reminded to check with libraries for their detailed holdings. The subject headings in this bibliography followed U.S. Library of Congress Subject Headings. Users can therefore do the cross-reference more efficiently. The location and the call number of each title were also included to direct users in the title search.

Special thanks to the following personnel and staff at the Chinese University who provided continuous encouragement, support, comments and assistance, without which this task would not have been possible to accomplish. They are, Prof. Yue-man Yeung, the Director of the Hong Kong Institute of Asia-Pacific Studies, Dr. Japhet Law, the former Executive Director of the Asia-Pacific Institute of Business, Mr. Frederick Chang, Mrs. Rita Wong, Mrs. Nancy Chan, Mr. Kwoon-choh Yue, Mrs. Wai-kwan Lam, Ms. May Chau, Ms. S.H. Yu, Mr. Chiu-chung Wong and the staff of the Systems and Communications Division at the Chinese University Library. Special acknowledgment to Ms. Po-san Wan who provided continuous technical assistance in the publishing process and to Mrs. Ave Tse, who did the voluminous data entry and editing accurately and efficiently.

Appendix: A Note on Subject Headings

A wide variety of resources on different topics of the political, social, economic and business environments were selected for each country or region according to the following Library of Congress subject headings. The country of China was chosen below for illustration purpose. Any particular geographical, historical and subject subdivisions or breakdown by types of materials at the end of these subject headings were omitted for the sake of simplicity. Some of the following headings, however, do not apply to some countries, while some headings for a particular country may not appear below.
